DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-4, 6-8, and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Amadio et al (US 6,043,399).

The claims are drawn to a method for the continuous preparation of cumene hydroperoxide by oxidation of cumene with an oxygen-containing gas, wherein the oxygen content of said gas is from 22 mol% to 50 mol%.

Amadio et al teach a process for preparing cumene hydroperoxide by oxidizing cumene with an oxygen-containing gas, such as oxygen-enriched air, wherein the oxygen content introduced to the reaction mixture is at least 8% and preferably at least 20%. The amount of oxygen in the gases departing the reactors is kept below 6.5 %. The cumene hydroperoxide produced is then decomposed to phenol and acetone (col. 3, line 18 to col. 4, line 23).

The difference between Amadio et al and the instant claims is that Amadio et al do not expressly state that the oxygen content of the oxygen-containing gas is from 22 mol% to 50 mol%; however, the instant claims are rendered obvious since the reference teaches an oxygen content of preferably at least 20 %. A person having ordinary skill in the art would have adjusted the oxygen content accordingly, in order to obtain an optimal oxygen content for oxidizing cumene to its hydroperoxide, while avoiding under oxidation or over oxidation of cumene.

Claims 5, 9, and 10-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Amadio et al as applied to claims 1-4, 6-8, and 13 above, and further in view of Zakoshansky et al (US 5,767,322).

The instant claims recite the oxygen-containing gas being fed to reactor using a sparger. Amadio et al do not expressly teach a sparger, but teach that an "means for introducing gas containing oxygen" can be used (col. 4, lines 15-16). However, Zakoshansky et al teach cumene oxidation process wherein an air sparger used to feed air to the oxidation reactor (col. 7, lines 32-33). The combined reference teaching therefore renders the instant claims obvious.
